

CHESTER TIMES – December 15, 1904

CENTRAL STATION AT RIDLEY PARK – A Telephone Convenience for the Benefit of Borough Subscribers – the Bell telephone Company is erecting a one-story building at the corner of Tome and Penn Streets. An exchange board of modern design will be placed in the building. The exchange will be the central station for the company's numerous subscribers in this section, and will add considerably to the commercial activity of the borough.

THE NEW BUNGALOW – The bungalow being built on Ridley Avenue by Contractor J. W. Meckert for Dr. J. M. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, will be completed this week, and the Quaker City physician will take possession of his new home next week. The building is one story in height and is of attractive design, resembling somewhat the Wolf Brothers' bungalow on the Chester Pike.

Keith Lockhart Collection